

THE NEW ENGLAND QUARTERLY

A Historical Review of New England Life and Letters

September 2018

In Memoriam: Nina Baym 381

Articles

Repairing the Breach: Puritan Expansion,
Commonwealth Formation, and the Origins of the United Colonies of New England, 1630–1643
Neal T. Dugre 382

The Substance of Doctrine: New England Calvinism and the Problem of Orthodoxy
Andrew MacDonald 418

Bell, Book, and Locomotive: Communicating Abolition
in and out of Concord, Massachusetts
Mixon Robinson Jr. 448

Emerson's Telescope: Jones Very and Romantic Individualism
Clark Davis 483

Book Reviews

The World of Credit in Colonial Massachusetts: James Richards and His Daybook, 1692–1711, edited by James
E. Wadsworth
James Henretta 508

*Black Prometheus: Race & Radicalism in the Age of Atlantic
Slavery*, by Jared Hickman
Elizabeth A. Bohls 510

Sarah Osborn's Collected Writings, by Sarah Osborn.
Edited by Catherine A. Brekus
Caroline Wigginton 513

Boston Furniture 1700–1900, edited by Brock Jobe and Gerald
W.R. Ward
Art and Industry in Early America: Rhode Island Furniture, 1650–1830, by Pauline E. Kane et al.
Christine Ritok 516

Revolution Against Empire: Taxes, Politics, and the Origins of American Independence, by Justin Du Rivage
Andrew David Edwards 523

Friends Divided: John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, by Gordon S. Wood
Richard D. Brown 526

New England Bound: Slavery and Colonization in Early America, by Wendy Warren
Michael Guasco 529

Art of the Amistad and the Portrait of Cinqué, by Laura A.
Macaluso
Elizabeth Bacon Eager 531

Picturing Emerson: An Iconography, by Joel Myerson and Leslie Perrin Wilson
Laura Saltz 534

The Life and Times of T.H. Gallaudet, by Edna Edith Sayers
Lawrence B. Goodheart 535

Black Bostonians and the Politics of Culture, 1920–1940, by Lorraine Elena Roses
Catherine A. Stewart 537